

Brynwood

Location

The Brynwood residential subdivision is located in Eldersburg. The subdivision is relatively old and does not have any stormwater management facilities. The majority of runoff conveyance is overland flow and there are two specific locations where the County has historically received drainage complaints. BRM is working with the Department of Public Works to address these drainage issues.

Description

Storm drain improvements include the diversion of the 2-year storm from Courtland to the location of an existing storm drain outfall that is causing damage to the receiving stream. Approximately 1,400 feet of stream restoration along the upstream end of the Courtland tributary will be constructed.
